W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

The 12th annual W. C. T. U. County Convention of Hastings, Lennox and Addington was held at Camden East, May 31st to June 1st, 1921.

REPORT OF SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS

Opening exercises were led by Mrs. Vannest, of Enterprise.

After reading of minutes and roll call, the following officers were elected:

Honorary President—Mrs. Williams, Belleville.

President—Mrs. Gibson, Belleville.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. N. Miller, Napanee.

2nd Vice-President— Mrs. R. Graham, Trenton.

Treasurer—Miss Reeves, Belleville.

Rec. Sec.—Miss E. Farley, Belleville.

Cor. Sec.—Mrs. O. N. Rockwell, Napanee.

L. T. L. Sec.—Mrs. Benjamin Denison, Selby.

Associate Sec.—Miss Gandier, Newburgh.

While the officers were being elected Mrs. Lockwood, of Enterprise, gave her report on temperance in Sunday schools, showing that Enterprise is certainly the banner union in this department.

Mrs. Pugsley closed the session with "moontide prayer."

WEDNESDAY, 2 P. M.

Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Armitage, after which the following superintendents were appointed:

Evangelistic—Mrs. Crow, Trenton.

Citizenship—Mrs. (Rev.) Irvine Selby.

Anti-Narcotic — Mrs. Curry, Trenton.

Flowers and Fruit—Miss Hill, Belleville.

Moral Education—Mrs. Dunwoodie, Newburgh.

Parlor Meetings—Mrs. Douglas, Napanee.

Law Enforcement—Mrs. Armitage, Napanee.

Press—Miss Parks, Napanee.

Scientific Temperance — Mrs. (Rev.) Rogers, Miss Anderson, Napanee.

Temperance in Sunday schools —Mrs. Lockwood, Enterprise.

Medal Contest—Mrs. J. L. Wilson, Enterprise.

Exhibition and Fairs — Mrs. Pringle, Selby.

Travellers' Aid—Mrs. J. W. Perry, Camden East.

Missionary in Lumber Camps—Mrs. E. Sexsmith, Wilton.

Canadianization — Mrs. Cole, Belleville.

Mrs. Pugsley then conducted a "School of Methods," showing how any department may be developed.

She emphasized that through a parlor meeting more people may become conversant with the work, which they need only to know to become interested. She spoke of the scientific effect of alcohol on the system, and many other interesting truths.

Mrs. Miller, Vice-President, presented a plan of work for the following year:

1. That the Evangelistic Superintendent of the Unions urge the members to a more faithful observance of the noontide prayer.

2. That type-written suggestions as given by Mrs. Dunwoodie be sent to each Evangelistic Superintendent in the county and to Provincial Evangelistic Superintendents.

3. That posters be used in each Union for educational use in teaching scientific temperance.

4. Recommended that each Union set apart a sum of money called a Thanksgiving Fund, administered under the executive and scattered helpers for the increasing of membership and extension of the work.

5. Recommended that each Union contribute of their funds to augment the county funds.

Miss Lucy Anderson, as convenor of committees, submitted the following resolutions:

1. Whereas conditions all over our land have made woman's work more arduous, and as the legal knowledge of our women cannot be maintained without correct information: therefore be it resolved that each year the latest amendments to the laws re status of women and those of special importance to our W.C.T.U. department of work be printed in our annual provincial report—that those already printed be thoroughly revised—such as sec. 2, page 171, of report, etc., so those women just awakening to their responsibilities may get the latest revised "abstract from law."

2. Resolved that we impress on Unions the necessity of our Travellers' Aid Superintendents co-operating in the safe-guarding of our young people by keeping in touch with Dr. Sara Detwiler.

3. Resolved that we urge our W.C.T.U. as a body, to press for a stricter enforcement regarding the censorship of the character of the moving pictures, that they may be used to elevate instead of lowering the moral tone of our youth.

4. Resolved that the county of Hastings, Lennox and Addington are in agreement with the Provincial Union in engaging a Scientific Temperance Secretary.

5. Resolved that this convention place itself on record as heartily disapproving the present form of prevailing fashions and that they form themselves into a Dress Reform League, to stand for a hygienic, modest, and moral style of dress, and would recommend a membership campaign for the same under the Moral Education Department.

Also that they memorialize the Branch W.M.S. meeting to be held in Napanee, June 7th, 8th, 9th.

Resolved that we tender our heartiest thanks to the retiring Union, who has so cordially ministered to our comfort, and to our hostesses who so kindly welcomed us to their homes. Also to the choir and other singers, and to all who have in any way contributed to make this our twelfth convention a success.

We are especially indebted to Mrs. Pugsley, our Provincial officer, for practical information and her most able and interesting address.

Mrs. Dickson, President Camden East Union, responded.

Moved and carried that Mrs. Sexsmith be delegate to the Convention at London.

Convention was closed by singing, "God be With You Till We Meet Again."

NAPANEE CHAUTAUQUA, JUNE 24TH TO 30TH

PERCIVAL VIVIAN (HIMSELF) AND COMPANY OF BROADWAY PLAYERS.

All will remember Mr. Percival Vivian's acting in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" two summers ago: Since then we have been trying to induce him to head his own company over this circuit and are happy to announce that we have succeeded. He will appear in the leading role of the screaming laughter-producing comedy written in twenty years, "It Pays to Advertise."

Those who enjoyed a good laugh last summer with the Vivian Players in "Nothing But the Truth" are promised more and harder laughs. For this years this comedy held the boards in the big cities. We are the first to produce it in Chautauqua circles. To do so, we are paying a large royalty as well as heavy salaries, to the actors in order to get Mr. Vivian himself, who is one of the best paid actors in the theatrical field, and the kind of actors with whom he would wish to surround himself. Mr. Vivian has the pick of the best actors and actresses in New York City and is bringing with him a company of Broadway players, with a well-balanced cast.

NAPANEE CHAUTAUQUA JUNE 24TH TO 30TH

You will enjoy this year the best Chautauqua Program that has ever been given in Eastern Canada. This is no exaggeration. Those who were at every day's program last year will be inclined to doubt that and say it can't be done; but come and see.

Napanee was the Banner Chautauqua town last year, and we believe it will be this year because the people of Lennox and Addington know a good thing.

The town is divided into sections and ladies will canvas the homes in those districts. Be ready for them and please do not ask them to call again if you can help it. It is a community project and these ladies are helping along a good work.

Adult Tickets are $2.50, plus 25c. War Tax.

Children's Tickets are $1.25, plus 10c. War Tax.

Press Comments—"The music, the lectures and even the fun presented from the Chautauqua platform bore the Chautauqua message of cheer and a higher and broader life." "Nothing in recent years has been so conducive to the public good as the week of unalloyed pleasure and entertainment."

"PLAY UP!"

There's a breathless hush in the Close to-night,
Ten to make and the match to win—
A bumping pitch and a blinding light,
An hour to play and the last man in.
And it's not for the sake of a ribboned coat,
Or the selfish hope of a season's fame,
But his Captain's hand on his shoulder smote—
"Play up! Play up! and play the game!"

The sand of the desert is sodden red—
Red with the wreck of a square that broke;
The gatling's jammed and the Colonel's dead,
And the regiment's blind with dust and smoke.
The River of Death has brimmed his banks,
And England's far, and Honor's name,
But the voice of a school boy rallies the ranks,
"Play up! Play up! and play the game!"

This is the word that, year by year,
While in her place the School is set,
Every one of her sons must hear,
And none that hears it dare forget.
This they all, with a joyful mind,
Bear through life like a torch in flame,
And falling, fling to the host behind—
"Play up! Play up! and play the game!"

Immigrants From U. S.

Though there was a notable reduction in the number of immigrants from the British Isles to Western Canada during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1920, there was an increase in the number of immigrants from the United States and also in the value of stock and equipment and the wealth brought over with them. In 1918-199 there was a total of 19,115 settlers arrived in Western Canada from the United States. These brought with them $2,169,856 in stock effects, and $8,751,673 in cash and wealth. In the next fiscal year the total number arriving had increased to 23,300, with $3,335,138 in stock effects and $10,487,085 in cash and wealth. This information is given in the annual report of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY CONVENTION

The twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, Bay of Quinte Branch, opened on Tuesday afternoon, June 7th, in Trinity Church, with the President, Mrs. A. W. Grange, in the chair.

The opening service was taken by members of the Executive. After the singing of a missionary hymn, Mrs James Kendry, of Peterboro, read from St. Luke's gospel, 24th chapter, beginning with the 13th verse, and emphasized the thought of how much we need to have Jesus joined to the company of delegates that when we return to our respective societies we may report that our hearts truly burned within us as he talked with us by the way.

After a few well chosen words of welcome from the President, committees were nominated. In behalf of the Napanee Church the Convention was cordially welcomed by Mrs. M. S. Madole, and Sister Societies brought very kind greetings, to all of which Mrs. Dr. F. B. Baker, of Belleville, made a suitable reply.

The District Reports were encouraging and showed an increase all along the line.

The evening session was held in Grace Church and was presided over by Rev. W. H. Rogers, who extended a cordial welcome to the ladies, saying that as brevity is the soul of wit his chairman's address would be the wittiest on record. The choir rendered an anthem most acceptably, entitled, "Seek the Lord." The Missionary Band girls sang sweetly, "Missionary Bells."

Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Cor.-Secretary of Circles and Bands, reported 64 new circles organized this year. No. of Circles 50 ; Increase 14 ; Annual members 1053 ; Increase 251 ; Life members 37.

Thirteen new bands were organized this year. Total No. of Bands 108, increase 9 ; Annual members 3037, increase 267 ; Life members 336, increase 62. Total 3375, total increase 359. No. of Palm Branches taken, 858.

Mrs. F. B. Foley, Treasurer of Circles and Bands, reported Amount raised by Circles—Annual Members' fees $254.25 ; Life membership $15.00 ; total from all sources $4383.22, increase $752.29.

Miss Mildred Loucks delighted the delegates with her little song, "I'm a little Star for Jesus."

Mrs. H. A. Lavell, B. A. President of the Board of Managers, congratulated the Branch on the splendid reports. We have not reached our high objective but have cause for congratulation, not discouragement. She chose as her subject, "Our Home Base and Its Importance." She linked up the work of the Home Base with that of the field by recalling the necessity of the Home Base during the war, and made the delegates feel responsibility by facing them with the fact that success on the field depended largely on activities at the Home Base. She mentioned illustrations of these activities in the Rest Fund, Literature Department, Supply Committee, etc. Many of our problems were presented, firstly money. The speaker said when you refuse to give money you are strangling some part of the cause. To interest the indifferent is another problem to be solved. It takes a powerful reasoner to induce the indifferent woman that she ought to be a member of the W. M. S. More than money or name, we want the woman with the love of Christ in her heart. Literature is a help, as lack of knowledge is often the cause of indifference. The best way is to give her a new vision of God by example.

A third problem is the finding of efficient leaders. It is essential policy to let our Circles and Bands die, as many of our most efficient workers are trained here. Also many of our missionaries have heard the call through these very organizations.

Mrs. Lavell told a very apt little story to impress the truth that we have no right to stay as we were made, ignorant, selfish, reticient, stingy, or nervous as the case may be.

She closed her excellent address with a forceful appeal to bearers to let down the net for the draught.

Mrs. Bradley captivated the audience by her beautifully rendered solo.

Doxology and Benediction closed the evening session.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, 9.30

A very impressive "In Memoriam" service was conducted by Mrs. Reddick, when the names of seventy-eight members who have passed to the beyond were read.

A memorial was passed that we have our Branch Meeting the first week in June.

Mission Band Conference conducted by Mrs. M. E. Wilson.

Mrs. Garland gave receipts for successful Mission Band. (This paper follows.)

A young lady who was a school teacher, was asked to keep house. She had very little knowledge of the culinary art, and an elder sister was giving her instructions in all the mysteries of making light cakes and fluffy biscuits. She had a nice little book in which all the words of the process She was very particular about her writing and very careful about every detail ; in fact, she asked so many questions that her sister finally said, a little impatiently, "Well, you know you have to use your own judgment you just simply have to do your own judgment about these things, in order to have successful pies, cakes and biscuits."

Now the subject of this paper is "Receipts for Successful Mission Band Meetings," and I would say, right in the start, that you have to use your own judgment in order to have successful Band Meetings.

You have to put your own individuality into the work, and use your own well-thought out plans and methods. Other people's hints or suggestions might be given however.

First, in order to insure success, it is very necessary to have the parents interested, especially the mothers ; and how may this be done ?

Here is a little printed program of the year's work of a Mission Band. In the first place are the names of the Superintendent and officers of the Band. Inside are the dates and topics of each meeting. The whole Band having been divided into committees, the names of each committee, with its convenor, is also given for each month. (Perhaps this isn't very clear, but I have three or four copies of the program and would be glad to give them to anyone interested). Down at the bottom of the program is this note : "Parents are urgently requested to kindly make every effort to have their children present at each meeting unless prevented by sickness."

Sometimes it is the brighter members who take the most part in Mission Band Meetings, but this program is a most systematic method of having every child take her part sometime during the year.

A copy is given to each child to take home and show her mother, who then sees the note to parents at the bottom, and also sees just the month and just the topic in which her child is to take part, and even though it is not till the last month of the year, still she knows its coming and that her child has not been overlooked, and she at once becomes interested.

I called at a home and right on the spot we made her child on the program. I don't think it was there by accident either. The mother was proud to see her two little girls' names in print, to have them on the program and it was kept there right on the parlor table and that mother has shown her interest all through the year, both in a financial way and by helping her little girls in their Mission Band studies, and when the mothers are interested the battle is won.

Next, the children themselves must be interested and kept interested. Perhaps this is a more difficult problem.

And how shall we keep them interested in Mission Band Meetings ?

Shall we provide treats of candy occasionally or refreshments or constantly keep before them some bazaar or entertainment for which they are working ? How much better it would be to make use of the study book and put all our thought and energy into making the program bright, interesting and instructive, so that the children will look forward to "Mission Band Day."

In so doing let us make use of the blackboard, maps, pictures and curios, for we know that anything which appeals to the eye, makes a much more lasting impression than that which appeals to the ear.

A little boy was asked why it was that things taken in at the eye made a more lasting impression than when taken in at the ear, and he said, "Well ! when anything goes in at one ear, it goes out at the other, but when anything goes in at the eye there's no hole at the back of the head and so it sticks.

Too much cannot be said in favor of the Study Book for this year. The first chapter telling just how the Bible was handed down to us is wonderful, then the stories of the pioneer missionaries in India, Burma, China, Japan and other countries are most fascinating and thrilling and cannot fail to develop a missionary spirit in children, the primary object of our Mission Band.

Sometimes children enjoy playing with toys which they manufacture themselves much more than with those which come from the store, and just so perhaps they take more interest in the pictures which they draw themselves than with those which are provided for them.

I have some pictures which the children drew on the Study Book. Used a good deal somewhat soiled. All among knowledge of the Book will recognize the twins, "Peter and Polly" as they thought they would be carrying home the Big Little Library, etc., etc.

In one Mission Band the leader had a pair of chop-sticks given her by a missionary from China and on the day of the lesson about Robert Morrison in China, a bowl of rice with the chopsticks to the meeting so any of the children who wished could try to eat with chop-sticks just like Robert Morrison did and all these things make an impression.

In order to prepare for the monthly meetings, the committee for the month, may meet at the home of the Leader, and sitting around the table they may go over the chapter with them, assigning parts to each one and arranging for all the program. Or, if this plan may be given, also a short time spent in amusement. The children generally go home from such meetings full of enthusiasm, all promising to get up their work and do the best they can.

One or two more meetings may be held during the year, in which the pastor, the mothers and the W. M. S. are invited, the program rendered by the band of the work gone over. This gives those present an idea of what the Band is doing, and as a result, they will be much more interested. Light refreshments and a social half hour at the close will give the Band leader an opportunity to talk with the mothers

And now with regard to successful recipes for financial part of our Mission Bands.

A lady, much interested in missionary work, made the remark as she handed a dime, and because that if you had real, good, successful Band meetings, you needn't worry about the financial part, and I believe there is a great deal in that. The children generally go home from such meetings full of enthusiasm, and children are interested how much more easily the mite boxes are filled.

This year, in our Band, as an encouragement, the leader promised that the family having most in their mite boxes would be rewarded by her completing the amount to make one of them a life member. This idea wasn't original as, in the Palm Branch—that most excellent little missionary paper, which every member should take—I saw that in one place the minister's wife had supplemented the opportunity, and the highest a life member, but as our minister's wives usually have too many demands already, upon their time and money, the leader made this offer herself. The way it turned out, however, the family having the most, made one of themselves a life member as they had $6.07 in their mite boxes. They deserved the reward, however, so a second life member was made in that family.

The former Mission Band leader made the next highest a life member and from donations, and one coming next was also made a life member. So we had four life members in all, from our mite boxes, and instead of $25, the original amount in the mite boxes, the sum of $33.17 was realized.

We know, that instead of raising money by entertainments, free-will offerings are much to be preferred, especially in Auxiliaries and Circles, but as children have so little money of their own, it may be allowable to have one good entertainment a year, and if possible, have every selection of the program missionary.

Some children, however, have a weekly or monthly allowance and it is well to begin at once and systematically to begin to educate them in giving. But while we are teaching our children to study and give let us not forget to teach them to pray for Missions.

A Band Leader, on the Cobourg District has been successful in getting their leader girls to pray in the meetings. In our Band we have not got that far, but have taken a step however. We get sentence prayers in sheets from room 410, especially adapted for Mission Bands, and at the Committee Meetings, give a prayer to the girl member to say every night, till the meeting then we have five or six girls ready to offer these sentence prayers in public, and some of the little girls, have said that even after the meeting, every night when they said their prayers, they didn't forget to add their little missionary prayer.

We hope that later, their own prayers may supplement these and perhaps take the place of them altogether, as these are only supposed to be stepping stones. At any rate, if they do nothing more, they give children the habit and get them accustomed to the sound of their own voices in public prayer.

A good plan also, is to have the Band pray during each month for some special missionary, also have a letter sent to her from the Band. We do not expect our busy missionaries to always answer our letters, but one of them very kindly replied to us and I would just like to read the closing sentence of her letter. "The hope of the world and country is ever interest and instruct them ; in the great missionary work our church has undertaken to do. Then I can say "Thy will be done on earth as it is in done in heaven" for these children ; of this generation must be early and willing to help and tell the joyful story of Jesus and His love to the boys and girls in heathen lands. May your Mission Band be a great help to others.

And lastly, in order to have successful Band meetings, may we, as Leaders, take up the work with renewed earnestness and devotion, may we be more consecrated, enthusiastic and intelligent leaders of the children.

May God give us wisdom, patience, tact, love, and all necessary requirements and may conscientiously do our very best, then pray and trust in God to do what we cannot do, and He will answer our prayers, for he is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

Mrs. Ross, Peterboro, gave advantages and privileges of being a Mission Band Leader.

Childhood comes twice to none. While we have it we prize it lightly, when gone we look back fondly to it. Childhood is all sunshine. It possesses such a depth of meaning that no wonder Jesus set a little child in the midst of the apostolic Band, when they were going out to evangelize the world they needed lessons in simplicity, faith, humility and tenderness.

Band leaders need just such lessons as they learned. They are in charge of a leadership training class for Mission Work. Many of the greatest missionaries of the past began their preparation in childhood. In your Mission Band may be a future Carey, Morrison or Livingstone.

Band leaders are the first to possess the mighty field of the life and intellect and soul of the child. Hearts of children are tender and pure and minds plastic as yet. The lessons taught will never be forgotten. The youthful mind will retain them like stories of old is full of faith and trust. They are easily interested if something worth while is prepared for them. They are enthusiastic, will undertake any task and offer no excuse. They are always ready to help a leader, especially if they love that leader.

Missionary workers for the local church are trained in the Mission Band. A Mission Band leader is a co-worker with Him. She can make the Band work so interesting that no boy or girl will feel called to His service. A child's religion is natural, positive, straight and idealistic ; also social, active and emotional. In conclusion, if being remembered by the beautiful and the good is a satisfaction, then we shall be abundantly grateful for childhood never forgets. Like the seed that sinks from view, our efforts may disappear for a time, but fruition is sure to come some time, some where.

An excellent paper, "The Value of Childhood" was given by Mrs. F. W. Riches, of Cambray. She applied the apt saying that a child is just a little animated mass that has ten thousand springs to make him wiggle, but none to keep him still. She emphasized the common frailty of children : restlessness, curiosity, imitation, fun, yearning and appetite. It is impossible to lead religion to a child under three years of age, but it does absorb a christian or non-christian atmosphere. A little tot looking at the picture of Jesus with His arms around little children asked, "Mudder, what for dat man got his arms around dos little boys ?" If the picture had been one of a movie star would the impression have been as good ? Nothing of it.

The speaker emphasized the wisdom of satisfying the child's natural curiosity, and the opportunities of telling about God and His works, thus preparing the way for the bigger truths of life. She urged band leaders to grasp their opportunity of becoming the child's ideal, and at the same time impressed the need of sincerity of purpose and conduct because a child is so keen to detect insincerity.

Dealing with the fifth characteristic the speaker said "Who has not seen the child yearning for the rest of its mother's arms ? Did it ever occur to you that that little germ was the one that grew and grew until in later years it was the force that formed friendships partnership and family life ? Guard it well !" She urged upon the parents the necessity of being chums of their children and used very effectively the following lines :

Mother is a playmate who will always treat me kindly.
Playmate who will yield me what true happiness demands ;
She will never let my feet stray into brambles blindly.
Mother's just a bigger little girl who understands.

She gave a large place in the success of the Band to the good story-teller as children learn unconsciously and without effort from a story.

In closing this splendid paper she said : "Am I making a practical statement when I say that by the time the child has reached the teen-age his character has been formed ? Like a piece of china it may be fired several times before it can reach perfection, but it has already been moulded. In this end we need Mission Bands to make a missionary impress that will affect the entire life.

The Quiet Half Hour was presided over by Mrs. (Rev.) Rogers, Napanee, and was a period of restful communion with the Lord of Missions.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, 2.30.

Mrs. F. W. White, Superintendent of Christian Stewardship, reported : She spoke of the large places women have in the final solution of world problems, and to this end we must take time to be holy that the solution may be in right one. We are stewards of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. How are we measuring up to our stewardship ? Are we to be real Christian stewards

THIS MAN DREADED TO SEE NIGHT COME

Was So Restless He Couldn't Sleep and Daylight Was Always Welcome.

"With the exception of a little milk toast, which comprised my diet for more than eight weeks, I could not eat anything," said Capt. Geo. W. Womble, residing at 1004 Cherokee St., Knoxville, Tenn., a highly respected citizen of that city.

"I am now able," continued Capt. Womble, "after taking two bottles of Tanlac, to eat practically anything. I had a bad form of stomach and intestinal trouble for a long time and for months my condition had been such that I suffered agony. So bad was it that I not eat the simplest food. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine but nothing that was prescribed for me seemed to do me any good. I had a terrible pain in my breast just over my heart and for weeks and weeks I got no relief.

"I finally got so nervous that I actually dreaded to see night come as I could not sleep and was always so restless that I would rejoice to see daylight come. I was also troubled all of the time. In fact, life seemed a burden and I was so miserable that I was almost on the verge of despair. Several of my neighbors told me about Tanlac and advised me to try it.

"I am personally acquainted with Mr. Dan M. Chambliss, of the firm of Kuhlman & Chambliss Drug Co., and when I told him my condition and how I suffered he advised me to begin taking Tanlac at once, and that is how I received hundreds of the best people in Knoxville. I have now taken two bottles of Tanlac and this statement is entirely voluntary in the hope that it may induce others to take it. Since taking this medicine I actually feel like I have been made all over again with the youth, energy and ambition of a sixteen year old boy."

we must have the Christ spirit and do His work in His way. She emphasized the stewardship of personality as the key to all other forms of stewardship. The speaker urged the need of a Stewardship Study Class in each Band. (See report of Christian Stewards reporting, 379.

Mrs. (Rev.) Irwin, of Oshawa, directed a part of the discussion on Christian Stewardship, speaking on "The Woman and Her Purse." She introduced three types of women, the one who likes to see her purse grow until her soul shrivels in the process, the second who uses her purse as a plaything, foolish and selfish, and the third who accepts and uses her purse as a God-given trust.

Mrs. John Laird, of Picton, reported for the Strangers' Department, which is two years old. The object of this department is to get in touch with immigrants and other strangers within our gates. Mrs. Rogers' report follows : Appointed on the Board of Managers with a Secretary in each Branch. The immediate appointment of a Strangers' Secretary in each Auxiliary is urged so that we may get in working condition for this fall. It is also the duty of each Secretary to cooperate with the pastor in visiting strangers and the sick, also to engage the teaching of English to foreigners.

In the Circle Hour the Peterboro leader suggested that owing to the need and lack of leaders in prayer, small groups meet and pray together in order to gain the experience. She suggested that during the year social evenings be held to which young men can be invited with a view to future men in Auxiliary work. Also to keep up missionary interest have biography of some lady missionary and read short portions of it at each meeting.

The paper, "Our Literature," prepared by Miss Nelly Rich, and read by Miss Taylor said amongst other good things, "Where there is no knowledge there is no interest, where there is no interest there is no action. Also it is the learning in a new light that, by God's help will have a part of it, this fold, then also I must bring." that visualizes missionary literature. Let us fellowworkers no longer remain uninformed, but let us resolve to use the great wealth of missionary literature to arouse our enthusiasm and then to arouse the enthusiasm of others.

"How to Influence the Outside Girl," was the subject of an interesting paper read by Miss Sulman. If we interest anyone we must have something of interest. We must advertise our meetings. Make it as far reaching as possible ; vary the announcement, use the press, keep a list of new comers and give them a personal invitation. Let every circle member be a "Social Committee" to them. Let recruits, laymen for the native church without which native leadership can never be worth, they diffuse knowledge of the Christian Bible, Christian songs and Christian habits. The need of achievement has been seeing the medical line and here we enter a most fascinating field. Wherever our missionaries are working to-day they are attempting to minister to the entire life of man. The "Healing of the Seamless Dress," once confined to Palestine, is now carried to the ends of the earth. The women of the harem for centuries inaccessible to any Christian influence are now easily approached by the woman physician and the trained nurse. Our medical missionaries are reaching the soul through the body, and the body through the soul, are girding the globe to-day with the most modern civilized nations, was not science, then unborn, not politics, literature or art, it was Christianity. What definite steps have we taken to bring our sisters into the circle of christian civilization ?

First, I would suggest "the translation of the Bible or a large part of it, into about 500 different languages or dialects. This has indeed been a gigantic task. We owe everlasting tribute to such men as Crawford, in Central Africa, and Lacey and Mather, in India, Judson, in Burma, and Morrison and Williamson, in China. Secondly, let us look at the second form of social service rendered by our missionaries, first educational. Take the schools—they give training to the children of Christian parents and equip men for Christian careers. Second, they give to the missionaries access to the children that are not yet blinded by false teaching. Third, they form a point of contact with the non-Christian homes around them, they train leaders, mendcouraged by religion. Has the Golden Rule been applied to our non-Christian sisters? We have fallen short in its application, but thank God to-day the young widows of India are no longer buried on funeral pyres; Again the opposition of our missionaries to the fast binding of women in China has been constant and in recent years has stirred up the Chinese themselves to serious reform and with, the freeing of the feet has come to some extent, the freeing of the mind.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

To-day we need women training in the healing art, women of penetrating minds, indomitable patience, women strong and fearless, women winsome and womanly, who will offer themselves either as missionaries, or into other departments of work who will live their lives in non-christian lands. For every woman who maintains in the foreign field a Christian home is an object lesson in the community around her. There are to-day thousands of young Canadian women living petty lives because devoted to petty tasks. Let us go forward and possess all the lands. Our non-Christian sisters dimly realize that they stand on the threshold of a brighter day. Democracy is spreading. Christianity comes as a social salvation. To all our non-Christian sisters, world weary, sadly wise, comes the great offer, "Behold I make all Things New."

Miss Turner of Campbellford, gave a very helpful and inspiring talk, taking for her subject, "Queen Esther," giving us four reasons why Queen Esther, if living to-day, would be a member of the W. M. S. First, she became a member of the King's household. She got into saving relationship which gave her the right to ask requests and expect to have them granted. Second, she became interested in the strangers without the gates. Have we ever become as interested in Jesus Christ who suffered without the gates." Third, she became a personal worker. She asked the maids in the palace to fast with her for three days. As a member of the W. M. S. she would do intelligent personal work, getting others interested in the work. Fourth, Esther worked. She went to the King. She was actuated by the same spirit which possesses our missionaries. Miss Turner concluded her remarks with an appeal to the Convention by words, works, money and prayer to make John 3.16 heard around the world.

Kenneth Tryon Kaladar, in Napanee Gaol Charged With Attempted Murder.

Cecelia Tryon, 17-year-old daughter of Kenneth Tryon, of Kaladar, is in Kingston General Hospital, hovering between life and death and Tryon is in Napanee gaol on a charge of attempted murder and probably another serious charge. The shooting occurred at the Tryon home in Kaladar Township on Thursday morning about 10 o'clock. Neighbors went to the home on hearing the report of the gun and were shocked to find what had occurred. The bullet pierced the girl's body at the back and came out at the left breast in a terrible wound. She received medical attention and was immediately sent to Kingston where an operation was performed. So far the girl has been unable to make a statement of the cause of the shooting, but it is supposed she resented too much familiarity on the part of her father. Tryon was taken to Northbrook on Thursday afternoon and before magistrate Lloyd was charged with serious crimes against his daughter and shooting with intent to kill, and remanded to Napanee gaol. Constable Geo. Sedore brought him to Napanee. The condition of Cecelia Tryon, who is in Kingston General Hospital is somewhat improved, though she is not by any means out of danger. Mr. J. M. Simpson has been retained by Tryon as his solicitor to look after his interests.

Reginald Beasley, a young farmer of Adolphustown, was drowned at the sand banks about a mile down the river on Sunday morning. Mr. Beasley, with a number of other men were bathing and he evidently took a cramp and sank in fifteen feet of water. His companions immediately tried to render assistance but it was nearly two hours before the body was recovered. Master Harry McCumber found the body and Master Willie Marcelle brought the body to the surface by diving. The remains were taken to Messrs. Ming & Hambly's undertaking parlors. Mr. Beasley was a returned soldier and some time ago purchased the Shibley farm in Adolphustown through the soldiers settlement board. He expected to be married next month to a daughter of Mr. Boomhower who is living on the Spencer farm, where deceased was spending the week-end.

ONTARIO MINIMUM WAGE BOARD SOLICITS SUGGESTIONS FROM EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYEES.

There are few subjects in which a keener or wider interest is taken than the matter of wages, probably because 90 per cent. of the men and women in this country are dependent directly or indirectly upon their own or someone else's earnings. Realizing that there is a point below which wages for women should not be allowed to fall the Minimum Wage Board was established by act of Ontario Legislature in 1920. It has now spent some months in ascertaining just how much a girl must spend in order to obtain the necessities of life. One of the results of their investigating has been the establishing of an order governing the minimum wage which may be paid to woman workers in the laundries of Toronto. Under the terms of this ruling experienced female workers employed in such laundries may not be paid wages at a less rate than $12.00 per week.

The survey is now being made of the following industries: Chocolate, Biscuit, Confectionery and allied industries; Paper box, paper bag, stationery and allied industries; retail stores, grocery specialties; gum and jam, with a view to establishing wage rates for girls in these occupations. These orders will first apply to Toronto but, together with the laundry order, will later be extended to the whole Province. As the cost of living is lower in the other towns and cities of the Province the order for the Province generally will fix lower minimum than for the larger cities.

Dr. MacMillan, Chairman of the Minimum Wage Board, Spadina Crescent, Toronto, has announced that he will gladly furnish information to any employer or employee who may care to write to him with regard to the terms of the Board's orders.

Employers throughout the Province, with whom the Board has come in contact, have invariably not only given their assistance, but, upon learning the methods and results of the Board's actions, have also given their approval.

RICHMOND TOWNSHIP S. S. CONVENTION

Richmond Township Sunday School Convention was held in Empey Hill church on the afternoon and evening of June 6th. Mr. S. Brown, president, was in the chair. Rev. Mr. Farnsworth took charge of the devotional exercises.

A nominating committee was then appointed and reports of the different departments of Sunday School work were called for. Mrs. Smith, superintendent of the Cradle Roll reported 238 babies, 112 beginners, 188 primary and 50 juniors. She gave excellent report of work done through that department.

Owing to the absence of Miss Baker, Mrs. C. S. McKim read the report of the girls' work. "The Canadian Girls in Training" programmes for the week night meeting are very highly recommended and may be secured by communicating with Miss Jennie Baker, Napanee.

Mrs. Burnell Denison had charge of the missionary work and gave a report of the splendid work being done in the different schools of the township. A missionary Sunday is being observed in each month in nearly all the schools of the township. Grace Church Sunday School raised $200.00 for missions; Trinity Church Sunday School $80.00; Selby Sunday School $114.00; Selby Beacon Light Club $40.00; St. Andrews $92.70; West Plain $10.00; Forest Mills $7.00; Sharp's Corners $5.60; Ebenezer $5.00; Empey Hill $40.00.

Mrs N. Miller, superintendent of temperance department, in giving her report stated that several schools give definite temperance instruction. Pledge signing is taken up in three schools. In the Salvation Army no person is accepted as member who uses strong drink. They may be a member, but not an officer of even the lowest rank if they use tobacco.

Rev. W. P. Fletcher, of Toronto, delivered the address in the afternoon, after which he conducted a round table conference.

Supper was served by the ladies of Empey Hill Church.

In the evening the opening exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. Tait, of Marvon. Special music was rendered by Empey Hill choir. The report of the nominating committee was read and the following officers were elected:

Mr. McGregor, president of the County Sunday School Association, conducted the installation of officers.

Rev. W. P. Fletcher then gave the main address, which was very inspiring and instructive.

Rev. Mr. Rogers then closed with prayer.

The next convention will be held at Forest Mills.

NAPANEE CHAUTAUQUA, JUNE 24TH TO 30TH

THE GILVAN LIGHT OPERA SINGERS.

An operatic quartette and pianist specializing in scenes from the melodious Gilbert and Sullivan light operas is coming to Chautauqua for two splendid programs. These are excellent concert singers who have had operatic experience. The famous opera, "Ruddygore," so successfully revived at the Park Theatre, New York City, by The Society of American Singers, has been arranged for four voices and a goodly portion will be given in their evening program. This is one of the most humorous, as well as the most tuneful, of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. The singers, Miss Martha Cooke, soprano; Miss Hazel Huntley, contralto; Mr. Joseph Kendrick, tenor; and Mr. Tom Morris, baritone, are all high-class singers of note, while Mr. Harrison W. Burch is an excellent pianist. This Company, with the personnel unchanged, has been in Lyceum and Chautauqua work for the last four years. A number of Ontario audiences were privileged to hear their program last winter during Lyceum season, and at every town where they appeared, the people were enthusiastic in their praise.

HOW OUR BOYS AND GIRLS ARE HELPING TO SAFEGUARD CANADA'S HEALTH.

Land of our Birth, our Faith, our Pride,
For whose dear sake our fathers died,
Oh Motherland, we pledge to thee
Head, Heart and Hand through days to be.

This verse of Kipling's, which has been chosen for the motto of the Junior Branch of the Red Cross Society, aptly expresses the spirit of that Society as at present constituted. The boys and girls of Canada are proud of their motherland; they wish to serve her well and truly. They want to grow up with strong and healthy bodies—for her sake and for their own. The Junior Red Cross work for the nation-wide Health Crusade.

When the first meeting of the General Council of the League of Red Cross Societies took place at Geneva in March, 1920, it was realized that the best hope for the future of the Red Cross in peace time lay in engaging the interest and enthusiasm of the children. The Junior Red Cross was, therefore, officially endorsed and advocated.

With the end of the war this work did not cease. The members of the Junior Red Cross continued their activities through the years of peace which have followed. Their peace-time work has included such enterprises as anti-fly campaigns, clean-up days, the gathering of waste paper to be made over into cardboard, beaverboard, etc., a supervised playground and community play-day, an open air vacation school, a supervised swimming hole, supporting a children's shelter, endowing cots in the local hospitals.

New branches of the Junior Red Cross are continually in process of formation, among the latest being one in the Township of Ernesttown, with a membership of sixteen children. A Branch of the County of Frontenac sends in $3.00 for a contribution to the Crippled Children's Fund, from seven children who are anxious to help along the work.

At a meeting of the Ontario Medical Association at Niagara Falls, Ont., on Wednesday evening, June 1st, a clean-up campaign was announced that the Canadian Red Cross had given the Association $5000 a year for three years to carry on such a great work.

Petrolea's Child Welfare Clinic, which has been hitherto managed by the V.O.N., has been taken over by the Red cross Society. The Red Cross is also considering the possibility of taking up Public Health Nursing.

Wallaceburg has just organized a Membership Campaign and the churches in the district are each Sunday taking up a collection in aid of the campaign for Red Cross Membership Enrollment in the district.

Welland's Rotary Club and Local Council of Women are preparing for a campaign and Oshawa has organized a branch of the Junior Red Cross.

An endorsation of the Red Cross Membership Campaign was passed at the convention of the G.W.V.A. in Brantford, the association referring to the "noble and splendid work of the Red Cross in war" and expressing the hope that the campaign for carrying on peace-time work will be successful.

Children in Saskatchewan will soon receive a visit from a fairy godmother whose name, while they may not be welcome to them at the moment, will be the means of saving them much pain and discomfort in their future life. Thanks to the efforts of the Red Cross Society toothaches will soon be practically unknown in Saskatchewan—banished by the advent of a motor containing a dentist and his portable equipment. Right away from the beaten track of the railroads this car will travel; into solitary districts where no dentist came before; into rural schools where the children will gaze upon it in wonder and awe—forth and forth, wherever its presence may be needed. First the permission of their parents will be obtained, and then no more toothaches for the little ones. And with good teeth will come improved health. The Red Cross has arranged for two such motors to travel through Saskatchewan.

Caught Whale With Hind Legs.

The first whale with hind legs has been caught in British Columbia. This was described at a recent lecture at the American Museum of Natural History. The legs project some four feet from the body near the tail, and are about six inches broad, the bones being covered with a thick layer of blubber which may or may not have contained muscle. The whale, a female fifty feet in length, was unfortunately not preserved at the Victoria whaling station, where it was brought in, and one of the legs was broken off by those making the capture.

Dr. John Bull.

Dr. John Bull, who flourished in the early part of the seventeenth century, is the reputed author of the National Anthem, but according to Sir Frederic Bridge, "the matter has been investigated by many, but so far there seems to be no proof of it." He was the first professor of music of Gresham College, and his connection with the City made him the musical director at many City feasts which, even in those days, seem to have been both frequent and elaborate. Bull and several other of the most talented musicians of the reign of James I. were in Roman Catholic, though they were obliged to conceal their faith in order to earn a living. This concealment appears to have become intolerable to them, and they left England secretly about the year 1611 and took refuge in Brussels. He became organist of Antwerp Cathedral in 1617 and it was buried there eleven years later.

"DAMAGED GOODS"—When Richard Bennett presented Eugene Brieux's drama, "Damaged Goods" to New York some years back, the world over for the wonder with which he deals with certain of the more delicate subjects of life. Not only does he show with a powerful moral lesson but at all times he is an artist in and plays are considered among the master pieces of French realistic writings. "Damaged Goods" is a powerful plea for the single code of morality. The young man who believes that "wild oats" are a necessity in the life of every man should see this picture; the mother will have clearly brought home to them the importance of knowing intimately the young man who is to wed their daughter. Although "Damaged Goods" may appear shocking to some people, the manager of the Strand theatre has been congratulated by several patrons on securing this feature for his theatre. Brieux is too much of an artist to permit his pen to descend to the sensational for the mere sake of effect. No one can afford to miss the most talked of production of the great French writer's play.
Also good Big V. comedy.

2,000 Acres Are Flooded.

VANCOUVER, June 13. — Two thousand acres of farm land on Nicomen Island is under water to-day. The Gourlay Dyke broke Saturday night under pressure of the swollen waters of the Fraser river in flood, and the farms which it protected were inundated. No casualties are reported, but the property damage may be serious, many cattle being probably drowned. A similar flood a year ago caused damage estimated at $140,000. There were a number of new settlers in the district this year, chiefly returned soldiers, but all these had been warned and loss of life provided against. The Fraser had been threatening floods for days.

NEED ALIEN CAPITAL

Russians Want to be Friendly With Western Europe.

Lenin Finds That He Will Have to Make Way for Entrance of Foreign Capital Into His Country—Soviet Government Offers Concessions to Countries That Possess Wealth.

LONDON, June 13.—Leonid Krasin, the representative of the Russian Soviet Government in Great Britain, adds important confirmation to the reports that Lenin and Trotsky have abandoned their policy regarding foreign capital and capitalists. Krasnin's statements are contained in an article in the Sunday Times. The newspaper calls attention to the fact that Krasnin invites foreigners to take up concessions on the conditions offered by the Moscow Government, confession of past mistakes and a hope for the future of Russia."

Some of Krasnin's declarations are as follows:

"My Government at Moscow are accused of conspiring in Constantinople and in Ireland. Both these statements are utterly false, and I believe well if the critics of Russian-British relations would understand that in the past few months a great change has taken place in the body politics of Russia.

"Before the trade agreement I often prophesied that, with the cessation of war and intervention against them, the Moscow Government would find it necessary to alter their interior policy. Moscow now finds it necessary to enter into trade agreements with capitalists all over the world. Britain's example they wish to be followed by France, the Scandinavian countries, Italy and America. Moscow realizes that anything like a Communistic revolution in Western Europe is more or less remote."

Krasnin, of course, maintains that in fundamentals there has been no retrogression.

"Russia at the present moment welcomes the foreign capitalists, and this policy finds its immediate and purely economic expression in our new policy of concessions," Krasnin added.

The Soviet Minister asserted that foreign purchase contracts placed by Russia amounted to £5,000,000 in Great Britain, 50,000,000 crowns in Sweden, 3,000,000,000 marks in Germany and $10,000,000 in the United States. "But our gold reserves have a limit," he added, "and as our exports are negligible we must resort to concessions, of which only one, that with the Svenska Kugellager Fabrik, has been signed, but others negotiations."

Krasnin asserted that the concessions obtained by Washington B. Vendenlip of California were dependent upon the passing of a forfeit, which has not yet been received.

"Soon a great international consortium will be formed to exploit our riches," Krasnin went on, and its activities will enable the Soviets to conquer their present terrible difficulties by restoring content in the cottages. The capitalists are assured of the Soviets' good faith, because the Soviets never have wronged those working under agreements with them, and if the Soviets are overthrown their successor will certainly be less radical and will protect the capitalists. But primarily because the Soviets need the capitalists they would not interfere or confiscate, because what they want is not machines, but the men who can make them go."

The Soviet Minister said he had no doubt of Lenin's ability to execute his new policy but that success depended somewhat on the crops. He declared the Soviets had the advantage in owning nothing abroad.

"As to internal affairs, which will liquidate itself," Krassin said. "We will print enough bank notes, so that money no longer will be taken seriously. The people themselves will destroy this mass of valueless paper and the situation will be cleared."

Krassin reiterated that Lenin never had pretended Soviet Russia could live alone, but hoped for world revolution, which he still believes will come in the indefinite future.

Pest of Cut Worms.

HAILEYBURY, Ont., June 13.—Cut worms are doing much damage to gardens in this town this summer, and old residents say this pest has never been so bad in the history of the town. The cold weather of last fall is held responsible, it being stated that when snow came ahead of frost the larvae survived, instead of succumbing. The potato bug is also active this summer.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. Catarrhal Deafness requires constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrh Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

KING'S LIFE WILL BE SAFE

Sinn Feiners Will Not Attempt to Kill Monarch.

King George Will Visit Ireland for Opening of Northern Parliament, and Interest In Historic Occasion Is Already Keen — Savagery of Murder Gang Over Week-End Has Few Precedents.

BELFAST, June 13. — According to the general opinion of people in this city and Dublin there is very little likelihood of any attempt being made by Sinn Feiners against the life of King George when he visits the latter city, June 22, to attend the state opening of the Northern Parliament.

The King will land from the royal yacht at Donegal quay, which is about ten minutes' drive from the City Hall, where the new Parliament will meet. The military and the police will co-operate in taking all precautions, and the city will be carefully gone over by the Royal Irish Constabulary previous to his arrival. He will be met by a committee headed by Lord Pirrie and the Marquis of Londonderry.

There is not room for more than 175 visitors in the Council Chamber, where Parliament sits, and the banquet hall seats 355 if packed with care. The fight for tickets to the ceremony and luncheon commenced at the luncheon on June 7, when the Prime Minister, Sir James Craig, read a telegram from King George accepting the invitation of the city of Belfast to be present at the formal opening of the Ulster Government.

Hotel accommodation in Belfast is limited and old-fashioned, and the proprietors have already commenced putting up their rates.

The Publicity Department of the Dail Eireann has announced that the "Irish Republican Army" was responsible for the letter received by the authorities at Trinity College threatening them that celebration of the annual athletic festival week of the college would entail danger to the public. After declaring that if such a letter was received it was a hoax on the "Irish Republican Army" it was a forgery, the denial says:

"The Republican authorities do not send threatening letters and any such letters purporting to be from the 'Irish Republican Army' are from some anti-Irish body or private individuals."

Announcement was made on Friday of the cancellation of the annual athletic festival week of Trinity College in consequence of the receipt of a letter, said to be from the "Irish Republican Army," notifying the college authorities that if the sports were held the safety of those attending would be jeopardized.

The series of tragedies during the week-end eclipsed in savagery any previous shootings. The victims included an aged clergyman and three young business men, the latter having found in the northern section of the city. The Very Rev. James Finlaw, of Bowmbay, County Cavan, 80 years of age, formerly rector of Lurgilin, who had been a clergyman since 1887, on answering a knock at his door Sunday night, was confronted by a number of masked men. Without parley, they took him outside, shot him dead, then battered his head to a pulp and burned his residence.

William Kerr, a barber; Malachy Halfpenny, a post man, and Alexander McFeeley, a weaver, all residents of Belfast, were also slain. Many men, strangely attired, were concerned in the grim episodes. In each instance the victims were lured in a motor car, took the intended victim from bed, and riddled him with bullets outside his house. Then the body was placed in the car and removed to the northern heights of the city, where it was placed in lonely fields. The relatives of the murdered men were assured they were wanted for identification purposes, and would be allowed to return to their homes. Kerr and McBride leave wives and infant children. Halfpenny was unmarried.

Sharp rioting occurred on the York road early on Sunday, resulting in one man being shot in the stomach and thirteen others otherwise wounded. Three men were found shot to death in various parts of the city.

The disturbance began Saturday evening between a few people, and rapidly spread until both factions received reinforcements. During the rioting many bricks were thrown and revolver shots were fired. A bomb thrown by one of the rioters blew off a man's hand and seriously injured a woman.

The police had fired a volley of shots among the rioters, finally clubbed the mob into quiet, and dispersed them. When the curfew was rung fourteen persons had been treated in a hospital.

King to Lead Armies.

ATHENS, June 13. — King Constantine left Athens on Saturday night to place himself at the head of the Greek army in Asia Minor. In a message to the people of Greece, the king said:

"I place my confidence that we shall achieve victory, on divine protection, on the valor, enthusiasm of our army, and on the unity of the Greek forces."

The Greek fleet is concentrated at full strength in Turkish waters. A cruiser bombarded Ineboli, the Kemalist battery replying. The bombardment started several fires at Ineboli.

The destroyer Panthir sank two steamers which were transporting munitions to the Turkish forces, under Mustapha Kemal.

Montrose sub-station on Hydro Canal destroyed by fire, damage $100,000.

No military units from Toronto will go into camp owing to lack of necessary funds.

Air Stunter Killed.

CALGARY, Alta., June 13. — Alf. Mabee, an air stunter, was killed and A. Fleming, pilot, was probably fatally injured, when the latter's machine crashed from a height of 100 feet, while dying Sunday afternoon at Bowness Park. The crash was witnessed by hundreds of spectators.

RAINS QUENCHED FIRES.

Damage to Forests of Nova Scotia Were Heavy.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 13.—Forest fires which have done thousands of dollars' worth of damage to Nova Scotian woodlands during the past week were quenched by heavy and widespread rains that visited the province Saturday. Forest rangers in Colchester, Cumberland and Pictou counties reported that, barring unforseen incidents, danger to the forests of Nova Scotia was practically over.

Reports Exaggerated.

FREDERICTON, N.B., June 13.—The Department of Lands and Mines reported that local showers have been general all over the province and have resulted in an improvement in the fire situation.

Reports current on Saturday regarding fires at McGivney's Junction and Minto were exaggerated. An official report says that 350 acres were burned over by the fire near McGivney's, but no timber-land was burned over, the fire being confined to second-growth on private lands. There was no truth in the report of a serious fire near Minto. A small brush fire was extinguished on Friday by the employes of the Minto Coal Co. and that was the only fire in the vicinity of that place.

Hail Millions.

KAPUSKASING, June 13. — Forest fires raged three miles from here all Saturday night and Sunday and destroyed the supplies at Spruce Falls pulpwood camp. The men and a number of horses escaped on a special train, but ten animals were lost. Two log transformers were blown out and the lines destroyed, at an estimated loss of $500,000, while pulpwood piled for three miles on both sides of the tracks fell prey to the flames.

RANEY IS SUPPORTED.

Methodists Endorse Attorney-General and His Policies.

ORILLIA, Ont., June 13. — The unanimous adoption of a resolution strongly commendatory of the attitude of the Drury Government on the question of law and law enforcement with an equally emphatic approval of the stand of the Hon. W. E. Raney on race track gambling was the outstanding feature of Saturday afternoon's session of the Toronto Methodist Conference. The motion, as brought forward by the Laymen's Association, was adopted unanimously. It reads as follows:

"That this conference express to the Hon. E. C. Drury and his associates in the Government, and especially to the Attorney-General, Hon. W. E. Raney, its deep appreciation of the splendid service being rendered in the enforcement of law and the preservation of order in the Province of Ontario, and beg to assure them of the conference's loyal support in the noble endeavor to make vice less popular in Canada, and further that we shall support unequivocally the unintimidating, every effort for the suppression of race track gambling."

That Premier Drury had assured him that if necessary the Government would go to the country on the question of appeals to County Judges in the O.T.A. cases, was the statement of Magistrate G. H. Clark, of Orillia. Hon. Mr. Raney was being hounded, he said, as no public man had been hounded in the history of the province. He believed that it was up to the church to let the people know that it was behind Mr. Raney.

GOLD IN MANITOBA.

Strike at The Pas Is Said to Be Very Rich.

THE PAS, Man., June 13.—Additional information received here concerning the gold strike at Elbow Lake leads to the belief that, from the surface showings, the largest find in gold on the continent has been uncovered.

The dyke has been stripped of overburden for 350 feet in length and 50 in width, without interrupting the walls in which the gold is freely deposited throughout. The outcropping near the water's edge, where the first assay was made, has developed into a rich pocket of gold which gradually lessens in quantity back to the discovery post 350 feet away, where the body disappears along the river front.

An attractive feature about this strike is the evident continuity of free gold for the length and width of the dyke, starting from the gold pocket, where specimens were dug out, which, volume of fifty per cent. The dyke uncovered, revealed small specks of gold, fairly regularly all along. A few shots were put in nearer the discovery posts, and the material shot out also contained free gold.

A case of dynamite has been sent up to the property to be used in blowing open the dyke to learn to what extent this gold is deposited underneath. Prospectors are staking heavily around the discovery and across the Grassy river, opposite the find, where, it is claimed, the dyke has been picked up.

Weslubanck died in the Notre Dame Hospital early Saturday morning without recovering consciousness. The affray is alleged to have risen out of a quarrel between the wives of the two men.

Fate of "Big Berthas."

BERLIN, June 13.—Replying to the Inter-Allied Military Control Commission's note regarding the location of the "Big Berthas" used by the Germans during the war, the German Government said there were seven such long range guns, of which four were destroyed before the armistice; the fifth was scrapped at Essen in April, 1919; the sixth was scrapped at Meppen, and the seventh at Magdeburg in November, 1919.

Embarrassment Feared.

LONDON, June 13. — The London Times, in a review of the allied policy in the Near East, refers to fears lately expressed lest Great Britain become embroiled in war there, and says: "The danger is not indeed of war, but of serious embarrassment, which there may be if we fail to concert immediately a common policy with our allies."

The Times declares that Great Britain's greatest concern is the safety of the Straits Region, and adds:

"The Greeks have a fair moral claim to Smyrna and the immediate neighborhood, but it does not follow that all the supreme national aspirations are equally justifiable."

Bavarians May Disobey.

MUNICH, June 13.—The three-day general strike called by the radical parties as a protest against the murder last week of Herr Gareis, a member of the Bavarian Diet, has not been generally responded to by the workmen. The water, light and street railway services are virtually normal. The hotels and cafes and the smaller factories are not affected. Only the larger industrial plants have closed.

Seemingly it is becoming clearer daily that the conservative elements associated with the Einwohnerwehr, or home guard, will not surrender all their arms to the entente notwithstanding the orders of the Berlin Government.

The VALLEY OF THE GIANTS

BY PETER B. KYNE

AUTHOR OF "CAPPY RICKS"

COPYRIGHT, BY PETER B. KYNE

"I'm afraid you haven't anything to say about it, Buck," Bryce replied dryly.

"I haven't eh? Well, any time you deny me the privilege of hiring and firing you're going to be out the service of a rattling good general manager, my son. Yes, sir! If you hold me responsible for results I must select the tools I want to work with."

"Oh, very well," Bryce laughed. "Have it your own way. Only if you can drive Duncan McTavish out of Cardigan's woods I'd like to see you do it. Possession is nine points of the law, Buck—and Old Duncan is in possession."

"What do you mean—in possession?"

"I mean that at ten o'clock this morning Duncan McTavish appeared at our log landing. The whisky fat was all gone from him and he appeared forty years old instead of the sixty that he is. With a whoop he came jumping over the logs, straight for Jules Rondeau. The big Canuck saw him coming and knew what his visit portended—so he wasn't taken unawares. It was a case of fight for his job—and Rondeau fought."

"The devil you say!"

"I do—and there was the devil to pay. It was a rough and tumble and no gripe barred—just the kind of a fight Rondeau likes. Nevertheless Old Duncan floored him. While he's been away somebody taught him the hammer lock and the crotch hold and a few more fancy ones, and he got to work on Rondeau in a hurry. In fact he had to, for if the tussle had gone over five minutes Rondeau's youth would have decided the issue."

"And Rondeau was whipped?"

"Ask in whisper. Mac floored him, and choked him until he beat the ground with his free hand in token of surrender; whereupon old Duncan let him up, and Rondeau went to his shanty and packed his turkey. The last I saw of him he was headed over the hill to Camp Two on Laguna Grande. He'll probably chase that assistant woods boss I hired after the consolidation out of Shirley's woods and help himself to the fellow's job. I don't care if he does. What interests me is the fact that the old Cardigan woods boss is back on the job in Cardigan's woods, and I'm mighty glad of it. The old horsethief has had his lesson and will remain sober hereafter. I think he's cured."

"The infamous old outlaw!"

"Mac knows the San Hedrin as I know my own pocket. He'll be a tower of strength when we open up that tract after the railroad builds in. By the way, has my dad been down this morning?"

"Yes. Moira had the mail to him and then took him up to the Valley of the Giants. He said he wanted to do a little quiet figuring on that new steam schooner you're thinking of building. He thinks she ought to be bigger—big enough to carry two million feet."

Bryce glanced at his watch. "It's half after eleven," he said. "Guess I'll run up to the Giants and bring him home to luncheon."

He stepped into the Napier standing outside the office and drove away. Buck Ogilvy waited until Bryce was out of sight; then with sudden determination he entered the office.

"Moira," he said abruptly, approaching the desk where she worked, "your dad is one of my best friends. Bryce Cardigan is the best friend he's got in all the world. And I'm here to announce that I'm going back to Oregon to keep house for him. I'm afraid. Now look here, Moira, I've shilly-shallied around you for months, proclaiming my love, and I haven't got to anywhere. Today I'm going to ask you for the last time. Will you marry me? I'm not you worse than that now, so if a father of yours does, and I will you I'll not have you go back to the woods to take care of him. Come now, Moira. Do give me a definite answer."

"I'm afraid I don't love you well enough to marry you, Mr. Ogilvy," Moira pleaded. "I'm truly fond of you, but—"

"The last hasn't gone," cried Mr. Ogilvy despondently. "I'm recovered. Well, I'll not stick around here much longer, Moira. I realize I must be a nuisance, but I don't like to be a quitter when you're near me. So I'll quit now. I'll be back to my old grove of coffee trees."

"Oh, you wouldn't quit a two-thousand-dollar job," exclaimed Moira aghast.

"I'll quit a half-million job. I'm desperate enough to quit the whole mill and rock a tiger outfit on the Amazon. I'm a ruin, Moira, since I can't see you. Your eyes are driving me crazy."

"But I don't want you to go, Mr. Ogilvy."

"Call me Buck," he commanded sharply.

"I don't want you to go, Buck," she repeated meekly. "I shall feel guilty, driving you out of a fine position."

"Then marry me and I'll stay."

"But suppose I don't love you the way you deserve—"

"Suppose! Suppose!" Buck Ogilvy cried. "You're no longer certain of yourself. How dare you deny your love for me? Eh? Moira, I'll risk it."

Her eyes turned to him timidly, and for the first time he saw in their smoky depths a lambent flame. "I don't know," she quavered, "and it's a big responsibility in case—"

"Oh, the devil take the case!" he cried rapturously, and took her hands in his. "Do I improve with age, dear Moira?" he asked with boyish eagerness; then, before she could answer, he swept on; a tornado of love and pleading. And presently Moira was in his arms, and he was kissing her, and she was crying softly because—well, she admired Mr. Buck Ogilvy; more, she respected him and was genuinely fond of him. She wondered and she wondered, a quiet joy thrilled her in the knowledge that it did not seem at all impossible for her to grow, in time, absurdly fond of this wholesome red rascal.

"Oh, Buck, dear," she whispered, "I don't know, I'm sure, but perhaps I've loved you a little bit for a long time."

"I'm perfectly wild over you. You're the most wonderful woman I ever heard of. Oil rosy-cheeks!" And he pinched them just to see the color come and go.

* * * * * * *

John Cardigan was seated in his lumberjack's easy chair as his son approached. His hat lay on the litter of brown twigs beside him; his chin was sunk on his breast, and his head was held a little to one side in a listening attitude; a vagrant little breeze rustled gently a lock of his fine, long white hair. Bryce stooped over the old man and shook him gently by the shoulder.

"Wake up, partner," he called cheerfully. But John Cardigan did not wake, and again his son shook him. Still receiving no response, Bryce lifted the leonine old head and gazed into his father's face. "John Cardigan!" he cried sharply. "Wake up, old pal."

The old eyes opened and John Cardigan smiled up at his boy. "Good son," he whispered, "good son!" He closed his sightless eyes again as if the mere effort of holding them open wearied him. "I've been sitting here—waiting," he went on in the same gentle whisper. "No, not waiting for you, boy—waiting—"

His head fell over on his son's shoulder; his hand went groping for Bryce's. "Listen," he continued. "Can't you hear it—the Silence? I'll wait for you here, my son. Mother and I will wait together now—in this spot she fancied. I'm tired—I want rest. Look after old Mac and Moira—and Bill Dandy, who lost his leg at Camp Seven last fall—and Tom Ellington's children—and all the others, son. You know, Bryce. They're your responsibilities. Sorry I can't wait to see the San Hedrin opened up, but—I've lived my life and loved my love. Ah, yes, I've been happy—so happy that all things—and—dreaming here among my Giants—and—"

He sighed gently. "Good son," he whispered again; his body relaxed, and the great head of the Argonaut was still. Bryce could not until the realization came to him that his father was no more—that like a watch, the winding of which has been neglected, he had gradually slowed up and stopped.

"Goodby, old John partner!" he murmured. "You've escaped into the light at last. We'll go home together now, but we'll come back again."

And with his father's body in his strong arms he departed from the little amphitheater, walking lightly with his heavy burden down the old skid road to the waiting automobile. And two days later John Cardigan returned to rest forever with his lost mate among the Giants, himself at last an infinitesimal portion of that tremendous silence that is the dispason of the ages.

When the funeral was over Shirley and Bryce lingered until they found themselves alone beside the freshly turned earth. Through a rift in the great branches two hundred feet above a patch of cerulean sky showed faintly the sunlight fell like a broad golden shaft over the blossom-laden grave and from the brown trunk of an adjacent tree a gray squirrel a descendant, perhaps, of the gray squirrel that had been wont to rob Bryce's pockets of pine nuts twenty years before, chirped at them inquiringly.

"He Was a Giant Among Men."

"He was a giant among men," said Bryce presently. "What a fitting place for him to lie!" He passed his arm around his wife's shoulders and drew her to him. "You made it possible, sweetheart."

She gazed up at him in adoration. And presently they left the Valley of the Giants to face the world together, strong in their faith to live their lives and love their loves, to dream their dreams and perchance when life should be done with and the hour of rest at hand, to surrender, sustained and comforted by the knowledge that those dreams had come true.

[THE END.]

QUEEREST OF CREATURES.

How Canadians First "Met" the Ostrich In Africa.

In that part of Africa that was the seat of the war between the British and the Boers there are many ostrich farms. It was at the time of the Boer War a thinly settled country, for the most part bare and comparatively unproductive, so the ostrich farmers often left their flocks to subsist on whatever they could pick up, and as an ostrich will pick up anything that is not too large for it to swallow, the advent of the British and Boer forces, with the chance that it gave at the leavings of the camps, was a great boon to the ostrich.

At Belmont a flock of ostriches came roaming into the British camp. The Canadians had never before seen these birds on their native heath. They were tame, and much on the lookout for rations. The Canadians had heard of the "digestion of an ostrich," and were resolved to test it.

One of the men threw the foremost ostrich a bar of soap. The ostrich swallowed it, and looked for more.

Another man tossed out a matchbox. The ostrich swallowed that, and looked pleased. A empty jam can followed, and the bird ate that.

"I wonder if he would eat cartridges?" said an Irish member of the regiment.

No one ventured to violate regulations or waste ammunition by trying the experiment, but suddenly an outcry was raised among the soldiers near. While the attention of the men had been centered on the bird that was swallowing meat boxes, soap and jam cans, another hungry bird had entered a tent and was actually engaged in eating brass-headed cartridges out of the soldiers' belts.

All the ostriches had particularly long and naked necks. The soldier-wanderers from the Far North noticed that any bulky object which an ostrich swallowed went down his throat so near to the skin that its descent could be plainly seen all the way.

So the soldiers stood in a group, throwing bits of all kinds of refuse to a particularly long-necked ostrich. He swallowed one bit after another with lightning speed and then stood up straight, while the soldiers laughed till they could hardly breathe to see the objects chase one another down four feet of neck.

As the ostriches helped themselves to many useful and needed articles as well as to the refuse of the camp, it soon became necessary to refuse them admission to the camp. But before they were banished an untoward accident—for the ostriches only—deprived two of the big birds of life. They were cut up and eaten by the Canadians, who found them very good, the flesh resembling beef both in appearance and taste.

Disease In Plant Life.

Doctors of plants all over the world are being organized by the Imperial Bureau of Mycology. It is stated that there are over 300 professional botanists in the British Colonies, some of them in positions of great isolation, and it is to assist and supply them with the latest scientific information that the bureau has been started. In the colonies disease costs an enormous amount of money. E. J. Butler, director of the bureau, estimates that rust in Canadian wheat accounts for at least 100 million bushels a year, valued at over $100,000,000. It is the great fight against bacteria that the mycologists are carrying on. Losses through such much fungus represent millions sterling annually, says Dr. Butler, and the coffee leaf rust in Ceylon is another source of vast losses.

At Target Practice.

At a target practice of a company of militia the captain swaggered up to the latest recruit.

"See here, my man," he said, "this thing is a rifle. Here is the barrel, and there's the stock. You slip the cartridge in here. Now you put the weapon to your shoulder. These little things on the barrel are the sights. When you have taken accurate aim, pull this little thing, which is the trigger. Now, remember what I have told you. Smarten up and look more like a soldier. What are you in civil life? A clerk, I suppose?"

"No, sir," was the reply, "I am a gunsmith."

The Red-Wing.

The female red-wing is unlike her mate, and differs also kinds of refuse to season. In breeding plumage (spring, that is) the has a streaked upper coat, the dark feathers of the back showing a rim of rusty or dusty color, and the under parts are streaked with dull white. The throat and bend of the wing have faded red or a salmon pinky tinge. In winter the light marking of the upper plumage are more noticeable, and the under parts show a buffy tone.

Worse.

The sympathetic caller could see that things were wrong in the household.

"Your husband has been ill?" she said.

"Yes," said the worried woman, "I do my best to please him, but nothing seems to satisfy him."

"Is his condition critical?"

"Critical!" exclaimed the woman. "It's worse than critical; it's quite abusive."

How They Saw Teacher.

"What is an orphan?" asked the teacher. None of the children seemed to know.

"Well, I'm an orphan," said the teacher.

Then a hand popped up and the small boy remarked, "An orphan is a woman who would like to be married, but nobody'll have her."

A Fascinating Outdoor Fiction Serial

One of those tales which appeal to the quality in man and woman that finds stories of human contest with the wild forces of nature so enthralling. Possessing a high degree of literary merit it is being hailed as the modern classic of its type.

Zane Grey says:

"The Voice of the Pack' is clean, fine, raw, bold, primitive; and has a wonderfully haunting quality in the repeated wolf-note."

The New York Times says:

"The Voice of the Pack' contains an intimate and detailed knowledge of the Oregon woods that makes the novel fascinating. The story in the main is a woodman idyl, rich in poetic fancy and throbbing with a reverent love for a nature which is unspeakably wonderful both in its majesty and in its all-pervading hospitality."

The Chicago Daily News says:

"Taken all around, 'The Voice of the Pack' is the best of the stories about wild life that has come out in many, many moons."

IMPOSING HEIGHTS.

Mountains More Than 20,000 Feet High In South America.

Among other big things, the British Empire contains the tallest mountains in the world, particularly Mount Everest, of which the native name is Chomokankar, the "Lady of the Snows," and which is supposed to be the loftiest mountain in the world.

Very little is known of Everest, though its next neighbor, Mount Kabru (24,015 feet), was climbed so long ago as 1883. Mr. Graham, who achieved this feat, also climbed Jaboon, another peak of 21,400 feet—but that is nearly 6,000 feet higher than Mont Blanc.

The Himalayas contain the tallest mountains in the world, but in the Andes of South America that are to be found the greatest number of peaks over 20,000 feet in height. In Bolivia are the twin peaks of Illimani and Sorata, of which twelve peaks, all together, tower more than four miles towards the sky.

Further north, in Ecuador, are twenty volcanoes in one cluster, all covered with perpetual snow. The lowest is just over 16,000 feet, the highest, Mount Chimborazo, is 20,498. Three of these volcanoes are still active, and eleven out of the twenty have never yet been climbed.

The highest of the South American Andes is supposed to be Aconcagua, 23,080 feet.

But the Andes, between the Isthmus of Panama and Cape Horn, can show no fewer than 288 peaks, which are more than 19,000 feet in height, 158 over 18,000, seventy-nine over 19,000, and forty-two over 20,000 feet. The four biggest all exceed 23,000 feet.

The Andes possess another record, in the shape of the highest road in the world. This is the famous Oroya Road, in Peru, which pierces the mountains by the Cruecro Tunnel at a height of 15,664 feet. This is almost the same level as the topmost summit of Europe's highest mountain, Mont Blanc.

Where Crusoe Lived.

Every schoolboy knows that a Scottish lad, Alexander Selkirk, was the character on whom Daniel Defoe founded his world-famous story, "Robinson Crusoe."

But Alexander's real history is not so familiar. His birthplace was Largo, a little fishing village on the Fifeshire coast, now a popular holiday resort. Here he gained the reputation of being a very unruly boy, who teased the life out of a half-witted brother, and finally ran away to sea because his father wanted to make him a shoemaker.

According to Defoe, Crusoe was on his desert island thirty years. Selkirk, however, was only away for four years and four months—as a matter of fact, he was marooned.

When, after many strange adventures, the wanderer returned to Largo, it was a Sunday morning, and his people were at church. Never backward at coming forward, he went in and took a seat close to the timber. That individual had long given up her wandering boy as lost, and so great was the scene she caused on seeing him again that it broke up the service.

Ultimately Selkirk married a village girl, and everyone thought he had decided to settle down. Largo woke up one morning, however, to find that he had disappeared with his wife. It is known that she died and Selkirk later married again. What became of him eventually, no one knows.

Largo perpetuated his memory by erecting a fine monument on the site of the cottage in which he lived, and interesting mementoes are pointed out to visitors by the inhabitants.

Marked Sea Fish.

In connection with international survey and hydrographical investigations, the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries is liberating, from selected stations in the North Sea, considerable numbers of "drift bottles" (or ordinary soda-water bottles which contain a request to the finder to break the bottle and to post the card enclosed as directed thereon), a small reward being paid to the finder. Many of these bottles may be found floating on the surface of the waters or are advised that they can be easily noticed in the sea; these are frequently brought in in a trawl. Either kind may be cautioned be found washed up on the shore. Read the card enclosed by putting out these bottles much valuable information regarding ocean drifts and the movements of fish—the habits of which can be studied. The Fisheries Department is also responsible for experiments with marked plaices and other fish. A small cloth disc bearing a distinctive number is affixed to the fin of the fish and should it be captured its progress and growth can be determined readily.

Lord French's Escape.

"I do not know which I am proudest of having crossed swords with him or fought by his side. As an opponent and friend he has taught us great lessons."

Lord French in his tribute to Gen. Smuts, South Africa's strong man.

Gen. Smuts opposed Kruger's policy which led to the Boer War, but when the die was cast he threw himself into the struggle in earnest.

On one occasion his troops noticed a Train approaching. It was suggested that it should be stopped, but he said, "Let it pass."

The train passed, "and you can imagine my feelings," said Gen. Smuts, when telling the story, "when I heard that the only freight it carried was Lord French!"

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The Rare Thorn.

Many person are familiar with the curious plant known as the Glastonbury thorn or Christ thorn. This plant has a rare history, for the tradition, as told by a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette, is that this kind of thorn from which the crown was made when Christ was crucified. It belongs to a very large botanical family, namely, the euphorbia — of which there are upwards of 3,000 known species. They usually yield a milky juice when cut or bruised. In some cases this juice is poisonous. Some of the wild tribes of Africa have used it to poison the tips of their arrows.

The name Glastonbury comes from old Glastonbury, according to the legend, that Joseph of Arimathea came as a missionary to found the first Christian church in England, and it was there that he brought the holy grail, or golden cup used by Christ at the last supper.

It is related that Joseph on reaching Glastonbury thrust his stick into the ground. This stick was from the Christ thorn and he had brought it from the Holy Land as a sacred memento. It took root and since then sprouts from it have been taken to many different countries. A famine during the religious troubles cut down the original thorn at Glastonbury, but it sprang up again afterward and visitors to Glastonbury ruins can still see it.

The old story is that the Glastonbury thorn blossoms miraculously at Christmas, and at no other time of the year—unless someone having royal blood in his veins pay a visit by mistake to it. It is even told that when the Prince of Wales, in November, 1919, was in Washington and paid a visit to the St. Albans Cathedral site, the Glastonbury thorn which is planted there put out a blossom which was placed in a silver box and presented to him, in accordance with the ancient custom.

An Expert.

Mrs. Newrich—"I can never remember how many cards to leave when calling."

Mr. Knowall—"The rules are very simple, madam. You hand one to the servant, and then, on departing, leave as many on the plate as there are adult members of the family, adding two of your husband's cards, and occasionally lumping in a few more for good measure. Do not be miserably in dealing out cards, as that suggests poverty.

"I am much obliged. Are you a professor of etiquette?"

"No, madam. I am a card manufacturer."

NIAGARA FALLS DOOMED.

River May Be Dammed In Order to Make More Power.

Ten years hence Niagara Falls may have disappeared. Mayhap the visitor will see but bare rock where to-day the waters take their awful leap into the chasm. Perhaps the authorities will turn on the Falls on special occasions only—days when the power demand slackens. Vandalistic as it sounds, Niagara seems doomed, if not in ten, then in twenty years' time. That is, science meantime discovers other and more economic ways of manufacturing light, heat and power. To-day Ontario, thanks to Adam Beck, gets the lion's share of Niagara power, but the Yanks have designs on the Niagara river, and if the International Commission agrees to the scheme proposed the mighty waterway will yield nearly six times its present production of power and the whole face of nature along the Niagara river will undergo a change.

It is not proposed to take the Niagara river bodily and force it through a pipe, but the scheme is almost as bold. To-day the river is generating a total of 650,000 horsepower, of which Canada's share by authorization of the International Commission which regulates the use of power, is about 400,000 horsepower. At present water can only be taken from above the Falls, the commission permitting the diversion of 15,000 cubic feet per second, of which the American share is 20,000 and Canada's 36,000. Ontario, however, supplies the American side with a certain amount of current. The new Chippawa Canal will increase Canada's power under international agreement by some 240,000 horse-power, which it is hoped to eventually increase to 472,000.

Meantime the Yanks propose that the 56,000 cubic feet per second be increased to 80,000, and, instead of getting the smaller portion as to-day, that both Canada and the United States go fifty-fifty, taking 40,000 each. But that is not all the Yanks propose. They hope eventually to get 1,500,000 horse-power from above the Falls. And this they would manufacture by tunnelling Goat Island. By extending Goat Island out into the rapids they would cut rock tunnels which, from the upper end to their base at the foot of the falls, would give a drop of 200 feet on to the turbine wheels. Of course, this and an equal diversion on our Ontario side would greatly reduce the size of the falls.

But this is only part of the scheme. The sequel means good-bye to the Whirlpool and the magnificent rapids in the forge below the Falls. The American engineers actually propose to dam the Niagara river at Foster's Flats below the Whirlpool and about five miles below the Falls. To anyone who has seen the mighty river sweeping down towards Lake Ontario the very idea of controlling it seems preposterous. The Niagara has a minimum flow of 220,000 cubic feet per second. From the falls to Foster's Flats the river descends 102 feet, and for the first four and one-half miles the current is terrific, and the shores sheer cliffs, hundreds of feet high. But Foster's Flats are the necessary dam base on which to start the dam which, 650 feet wide, would be 140 high from its base to the crest of the railway on it. The daring engineers propose to build one-half the dam from Foster's Flats, to pierce it with temporary openings and then to divert the whole Niagara river, and send it through these sluices, while they construct the balance of the dam in the bed of the river below the Falls. Once the dam was built the river would obviously back up and rise in its confines until about 80 feet of the present bank at the Whirlpool was submerged, and the now madly rushing stretch of waters became nothing but one of the biggest mill ponds in the world.

The scheme would of course ruin Niagara scenically, and if it could be accomplished at all would cost an estimated $100,000,000 and take three years. But the dam alone would supply two million horsepower, or 1,000,000 more than one-half. As steam-generated power even around Buffalo, where coal is cheaper than in Toronto, costs a generator $80 per horse-power per annum, the two million horse-power generated at the dam alone would mean an annual economy of at least $160,000,000 in coal—160 per cent of the dam's cost.

Playing Whist for Canada.

When Mr. Labouchere was attaché at Washington he went down with his chief to a small inn in Virginia to meet Mr. Marcy, the American Secretary of State, for the purpose of discussing a reciprocity treaty between the United States and Canada. Mr. Marcy, usually the most genial of men, was as cross as a bear and would agree to nothing. Mr. Labouchere thereupon asked the Minister's private secretary to join him, in confidence, what was the matter. "He is not getting his rubber of whist," was the answer. After that the British representative proposed every night a rubber of whist, which he invariably lost. Mr. Marcy was immensely pleased at beating the Britisher at what he called "their own game," and his good humor immediately returned. "Every morning," said Mr. Labouchere, in relating the incident, "when the details of the treaty were being discussed we had our revenge and scored a few points for Canada."

The South African Union

Was Thing of Slow Growth Like the Dominion of Canada

WHAT is now approximately the centre of southern Rhodesia, one of the states of the Union of South Africa, is the site of the ruins of Zimbabwe.

Recently the union drew the world's attention by voting on a proposal to secede from the British Empire. The vote was negative.

Although there is a gap of thousands of years in the history of that part of the world, from the time when the mines of Zimbabwe were worked to supply King Solomon with gold until the Caucasian race again gained a foothold there, the history of the states which are integral parts of the union is fraught with an exceptional interest.

In some respects the upbuilding of the South Africa Union resembles the early struggles of the colonies which grew into what is now the Dominion of Canada. They even have their race problem to solve.

With its vast areas taken over from aborigines; with thousands of its white settlers massacred by savages, but with others, undaunted, pressing on in their prairie schooners ever farther into the interior of an unknown continent; with a gold rush winning a new empire, and possessed to-day of a stubborn race problem, South Africa has in its history chapters which the world should know by heart. The site of Cape Town, now almost priceless, was bought from savage landlords for a few handfuls of gaudy trinkets.

In South Africa the strife of two white people for control has been an all-important factor. For about a century and a half the Dutch had possession of Cape Town and the small area surrounding it, which harbored all the whites in South Africa. The Napoleonic wars transferred possession to England, and in 1806 the English assumed a final control which many of the Dutch inhabitants resented. In 1836 many of the Dutch farmers or "boers" began trekking into the interior with the intention of settling beyond English influence. When Englishmen followed them they trekked further. Finally, beyond the Orange river, they founded the Orange Free State and beyond the Vaal river the Transvaal Republic.

First diamonds and then gold were discovered in the new states. They brought great prosperity to the Boer republics, but they brought many outsiders as well; and the presence of these finally led to the Boer War, as a result of which the republics came into the possession of Great Britain.

Aside from the war-born republics and monarchies of the last few years, the Union of South Africa is one of the youngest of the important countries of the world. It too was largely war-born. Shortly after the conclusion of the Boer War plans were on foot to fuse the two old republics with Cape Colony, the oldest South African Government, and Natal, next in point of age, to form the one union. It was finally created by an act signed in 1910.

The territory of the union occupies the whole southern and southeastern tip of Africa in a wide strip extending about 250 miles inland from the Indian ocean. Its area lacks only 25,000 square miles of equaling the half million mark. Of its four provinces, Cape Colony is slightly larger than Texas, the Transvaal about the size of Nevada, and Orange Free State slightly smaller than Alabama, while Natal exceeds South Carolina by a few thousand square miles.

Lesson That Was Lost.

Smith took a personal friend's liberty and said to Jones: "You must not take offence if I speak to you about something I have had on my mind for some time — just a little habit of yours."

"Certainly not," responded Jones. "Nobody has had the nerve to tell you before," Smith continued, in a hesitating sort of voice, "and you are such a splendid, noble fellow."

"Yes, yes," answered Jones.

Smith cleared his throat; then, with great determination, launched out: "You're one of those fellows who never really know what is being said to them; you're always pursuing some train of thought. Anyone can tell half the time you are not listening by the far-away look in your eyes. You've offended a lot of people. Of course, it's terrible rude, only you don't know it. You mustn't any more, old chap"—putting his hands on Jones' shoulders. "Promise me you'll not."

Jones was then obliged to face his friend.

"Just what were you saying?" Jones inquired, in a far-away voice.

London's Biggest Choir.

The Foundling Hospital in Bloomsbury, has been famous for the high standard of its musical services almost from the day of its foundation. Handel was a very generous supporter of the institution. He presented it with an organ, and usually conducted in the chapel performances of "The Messiah," which were attended by so many members of the aristocracy that it became necessary to print on the tickets of admission that "ladies are asked to come in small hoops and gentlemen without swords," to prevent undue crushing among the audience. No other church possesses so large a choir of trained children as provide the music in the Foundling Hospital Chapel; and the organist is always a musician of high standing.

"I Feel as Tho' I Could Not Drag Thru the Day's Work" is the complaint of many a woman in the household, office or factory.

After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—with eyes sunken, black circles and pale cheeks—such a woman is quickly restored to health by the Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce. Changed, too, in looks, for after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription eyes becomes clear, the eyes brighter, the cheeks plump. It is purely vegetable and contains no alcohol.

Druggists sell it in tablets or liquid, or send Doctor Pierce, at Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., 10 cents for trial package.

BARRIE, ONTARIO.—"I was suffering from a run-down system some time ago, was unfit to perform my daily duties, and was advised to try Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I tried it, took two bottles, and was restored to my natural strength. I cannot praise Doctor Pierce's medicines too highly, and will be willing to write to anyone sending a stamped envelope."—Mrs. A. H. Bishop, R. R. No. 1.

EDISON MARSHALL

At rare intervals a hitherto unknown author flashes into the literary firmament like a comet. Some disappear as quickly while others become fixed luminaries. About once every decade a writer makes an instantaneous success with his first book. Edison Marshall, a young Oregon newspaperman, is a case in point. His story, "The Voice of the Pack," was put out almost as soon as it was off the press and a second printing ran into many thousands of copies—literally a "best seller." It is a fascinating narrative of romance, adventure and nature study in the mountains and forests of the Northwest and has a substantial quality which bespeaks permanent characteristics in its creator, with other delightful tales likely to follow. Readers of this publication soon will have it as a serial. Make it your business to get the opening installment.

An Artist's Bank Account.

The laxity of men in matters of finance is illustrated by many amusing anecdotes, but the following story about the artist James A. McNeill Whistler is especially interesting for the absolute ignorance of the man concerning his own bank account had been running a long time, the creditor said, and he was out of patience. The amount was eighteen pounds. Whistler sought aid and advice of an acquaintance who lived in the neighborhood. He explained that he had a small balance in the bank, the amount of which he could not remember, but he was certain that it was not enough to cover the amount of the bill. He gave his friend a note and asked him to stop at the bank on his way to business and find out how much the deposit lacked of eighteen pounds; then he would make up the amount by way of a temporary loan, so that Whistler could draw a cheque for the amount due. The friend agreed, visited the bank and caused the clerk to examine Whistler's account. After a minute's search the clerk submitted a memorandum, which showed that James A. McNeill Whistler had to his credit a balance of six thousand pounds.

Rowing "Blues" Win Game In Many Walks of Life,

Records of Crews Indicate

IT is remarkable how many of the rowing Blues of Oxford and Cambridge have distinguished themselves in after years in various kinds of work.

There is the Right Hon. Reginald McKenna, now a great leader of finance in London, and an authority on all questions of international and national money matters. But to the wider public no doubt Mr. McKenna is still better known as a Liberal leader of note in bygone days, as a public speaker far above the ordinary, and an organizer not easily beaten in party affairs.

Mr. McKenna rowed in the winning Cambridge eight of 1887, and was always a great oarsman whilst at the "Varsity; indeed, for some years afterwards he kept up his rowing whenever possible.

That greatest of all-round sportsmen to-day, Lord Desborough, is equally at home in the Parliament, Chinese Conservancy work, mountaineering, shooting, rowing, skating, and a host of other roles. He was in the Oxford eight both in 1877 and 1878; was afterwards president of the University Boating Club; won the Amateur Punting Championship; stroked an eight from the Channel to France in a rowing-boat, and twice swam across Niagara.

The Bar is represented amongst old rowing Blues to-day by Mr. E. G. Hemmerde, K.C., who was at University College, Oxford, and won several famous rowing contests, both here and at Henley, about the commencement of the present century. The learned K.C. has also had a Parliamentary career of much eminence, as well as a notable and most successful experience of the Bar.

Almost at the same time as Mr. Hemmerde was rowing he made himself a prominent position in the rowing world, there was at Oxford one Alfred Noyes, who, hailing from Exeter College, did duty in the boat against Cambridge on behalf of the Dark Blues. Since that time—when he had already won a certain local fame as a poet—Alfred Noyes has made great headway in literature. He is now regarded as one of the sweetest singers of England—the man on whom has fallen the mantle of Tennyson and Swinburne.

A future viceroy of India, in the person of Lord Ampthill, rowed in the Oxford crew of 1889-91. Before going up to Oxford he was famous as an oarsman of surpassing merit. He had already been captain of the boats at Eton. Later on he became president of the University Boating Club, one of the highest honors which can fall to the lot of an Old Blue.

Lord Ampthill made a big success of his parliamentary and national work. He held several posts in various Cabinets, and finally was nominated in the splendid role of viceroy of the great Indian Empire—surely as magnificent a position as any Varsity rowing Blue has ever yet attained.

The Hon. Rupert Guinness, now Viscount Elveden, is best known, perhaps, as a hard worker in boys' and young men, and the training farm he keeps for them near Woking; also for his eagerness to do everything in his power to help them when taking up land work for a career at home or abroad. His many journeys to Canada, his arrangements for the life of lads out there, and the financial and other help he has given to young emigrants is beyond all praise.

Rupert Guinness is one of the Cambridge rowers who have won renown in many ways on the river. He rowed in the eight which won the Ladies Plate at Henley, 1893; he won the Diamond Sculls there in 1895; and again, with the Wingfield Sculls in addition, in 1896. He has done excellent work for years as a member of Parliament, as one of the L.C.C., and as a noted educationalist there.

Whilst speaking about rowing Blues, too, it may be of interest to note that the famous novelist who created Sherlock Holmes, Dr. C. J. Conan Doyle, himself only just missed being in the Light Blue crew which was at Clare College in 1887, and at that time seemed almost sure of his "Blue." But, as so often happens, there had to be made room in the boat for one or two of the best oarsmen who were in the losing Trial Eight, and Mr. Hyne's place was one of those thus taken.

Dr. Doyle took on a fine, vicorous oarsman to be thus "so near and yet so far" from getting the coveted ribbon.

Defoe's Story of the Plague.

For two hundred years Defoe's story of the plague in London has been regarded as a wonderfully realistic piece of fiction, although the overshadowing genius he showed in "Robinson Crusoe" has perhaps dwarfed the interest of critics in his lesser but still great, work. Now comes Dr. Watson Nicholson with a book in which he embodies the results of much careful search in the British Museum and other places and proves, as he believes, that the "Journal of the Plague Year" is not fiction but a history. The book should help to reawaken interest in a work that every young person who wants to learn to write well should read.

NAPANEE CHAUTAUQUA JUNE 24TH TO 30TH

HERBERT LEON COPE
The Funniest Man since Bill Nye

Since his first public appearance twenty-five years ago, Herbert Leon Cope, foremost platform artist on the North American continent who will speak on the first night of Chautauqua, has been given many complimentary names including the one quoted above and "Kill-the-Blues Cope," a name given him by more than a million soldier boys who heard him during the war, "the Sunshine of Chautauqua," and "the-smile-that-won't-come-off man." All of these names are deserved for he is without doubt a leading laughmaker on Chautauquas.

Cope is not only a great humorist, but he is a great preacher. Not an orthodox, ordained minister, you understand, but a man who preaches (without seeming to preach) through inspiration and through his grasp he gets on his hearers by means of his wonderful humor.

Born in Canada (Copetown, Ontario, is named for his grandfather), educated in Michigan, Cope earned his way through college by his uniform work and immediately began his career as a public lecturer and entertainer. He has spoken to many million people in all parts of Canada and the United States. His lecture, "Family Remedies," will long be remembered by all who hear it.

WILLIAM H. STOUT
Popular and Scholarly Lecture with a Purpose.

Twice elected President of the International Lyceum and Chautauqua Association by its thousand members of lyceum and Chautauqua workers, William H. Stout is well qualified by training, education, ability and experience to address the most cultured and critical audience anywhere. Last summer, a great success on one of the Dominion Chautauqua circuits, he expressed a desire to return to Canada and we are fortunate to be able to present him again in his great lecture, "Seeing Life Whole."

This lecture has a purpose—to furnish material for the moral and intellectual structure of the community. It emphasizes the essential need for courage, faith, humor and vision. It is not a lecture dealing with theories but is practical for Mr. Stout is a practical man, a man of business as well as intellectual power.

He has been selected as the first American lecturer to speak in Great Britain on the first British-Canada circuit—likely to be an indoor winter Chautauqua beginning in England next October.

AN EPIC OF THE EAST
"With Allenby in Palestine and Lawrence in Arabia," a wonderfully interesting, illustrated lecture by DR. FREDEDIC POOLE,
Oriental Traveller and Raconteur

The management of the Dominion Chautauqua has been fortunate in securing, through their recently opened London office this wonderful illustrated lecture that has set the entire English-speaking world talking. Dr. Frederic Poole delivered this lecture in London and throughout the British Isles for nearly a year, meeting with unqualified success. The newspapers, educators, clergymen, and many high officials of the British government, including the Honourable Winston Churchill, are full of their praise.

While it is not a war lecture that Dr. Poole presents, it does deal with some of the most fascinating phases of the Great War, in that he shows with picture and story the marvelously interesting campaigns of Colonel Lawrence that resulted in cleansing the holiest spots of the earth from the defiling influence of the "unspeakable Turk."

Illustrated profusely with rarely colored slides and moving pictures that can be seen only in this production Dr. Poole presents one of the most costly and valuable programmes we have presented through Chautauqua.

REV. DR. ROBERT NORWOOD
Famous Canadian Preacher Author and Lecturer

Subject, "The Dominion and Its Destiny"

With a lecture for the present times especially prepared for this occasion, Dr. Norwood will prove one of the three or four outstanding representatives that have appeared on Dominion Chautauqua programmes. He is an orator, a humorist, a satirist; he deals with vital things—with realities and not with theories. Dr. Norwood discusses the Dominion and its problems fearlessly and without bias politically, religiously or socially. Then he launches into a discussion of Canada's destiny — a lecture that may make you squirm at times but will make you prouder that you are a Canadian and cause you to resolve to do your share to help your country fulfil its highest destiny.

Dr. Norwood will need no introduction to Ontario audiences. Formerly a most successful pastor of the Memorial Anglican Church of London, Ontario, he is now occupying the pulpit of the Memorial Church of St. Paul, Philadelphia, one of the most representative parishes in the United States.

Dr. Norwood will speak twice; his afternoon address will be on "Modern Canadian Poets."

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

This is a Short Letter, But It Proves the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bothwell, Ont.—"I was weak and run down, had no appetite and was nervous. The nurse who took care of me told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I was getting strong, I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may use my testimonial."—Mrs. W. J. Brady, R. R. 2, Bothwell, Ont.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old-fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, beneficial influence, and as it contains no narcotics or harmful drugs it is a safe medicine for women.

If you want special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read, and answered by women only.

'Twas a balmy summer's evening,
And a goodly crowd was there
Such hope we got in days gone by,
But now it seems threadbare.

No more gin rickey's can we have,
Or highballs when we chose,
Since the old bartender lost his job,
We've kissed them fond adieus.

Departed with a shock;
And Bums in back lanes whisper now,
Do you want to buy a crock?

HOW A DEFICIT BECOMES AN ASSET

By J. E. Middleton.

In considering the financial reports of the Hydro Electric System some people are slow to distinguish between the accounts of a "Hydro" municipality and those of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, which represents all co-operating municipalities and administers as a Trustee their joint property.

Frequently in the Commission's books a "Shortage" appears among the assets and some folk are puzzled by the classification. It arises from the statutory requirement that power must be sold by the Commission to the municipalities at Cost. At the beginning of the year the engineers on the Commission's staff make an estimate of the cost of supplying each municipality with power. From this estimate the wholesale rates are calculated and applied.

While the estimate generally is fairly close to the actual results, there is sure to be a slight variation one way or the other. A rise in wages, a drop in the cost of materials, an unexpected increase or decrease in the business of the municipality may bring the actual cost of supplying the power below or above the estimate.

When it is found at the end of a year that a municipality has paid more for its power than the cost of generating, transforming, and transmitting it to the limits of the municipality, the Commission holds the Surplus to the credit of the municipality and pays interest upon it. Plainly this surplus is a liability to the Commission and an asset to the municipality.

On the other hand, it may be that owing to unforseen circumstances the revenue to the Commission for the sale of power to a given municipality is less than the cost of the energy as delivered. The Shortage is charged by the Commission to the municipality in a thirteenth monthly bill and in due course will be paid. That Shortage is a liability to the municipality, but it is an asset to the Commission. Actually it has the same accounting status as Bills Receivable.

At the end of the year 1920 over the entire Hydro-Electric System the accumulated surpluses and shortages as above described were respectively $574,831.95 and $409,463.27. During an average period of six years the difference between the estimated revenue and the actual revenue was $165,368.62. This stands as surplus to the credit of the municipalities and as a liability to the Commission.
